Q2 Commentary

Risk assets rebounded strongly in Q2 2025, reversing much of the weakness observed in the first quarter. U.S. equities led the recovery, with the S&P 500 gaining +4.96% and reaching new record highs. Investor sentiment improved, supported by moderating inflation — with annual CPI falling to 2.4% in May from 2.8% in March — and stronger-than-expected earnings, particularly in the technology and consumer sectors. While U.S. tariffs on imports from Canada, Mexico, and China remained in effect, markets appeared to price in a lower risk of further escalation, aided by resilient economic data and an improving corporate outlook. European equities posted more modest gains, underpinned by the ECB's second rate cut of the year in June — bringing the deposit rate to 2.25% — which helped support both equity and bond markets despite persistently sticky core inflation. China's equity markets also saw a partial recovery following new fiscal stimulus measures and targeted tariff exemptions. In fixed income, global bond markets delivered mixed returns. The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index declined 0.3% on an unhedged basis, weighed down by shifting interest rate expectations and rising sovereign issuance. Against this backdrop, the fund delivered a positive return for the quarter and stands at +10.69% year-to-date.

Investment risks

Risks from the Sub-Fund's techniques and securities

Counterparty	Market	Liquidity	Currency
The Sub-Fund could lose money if an entity with which it does business becomes unwilling or unable to honor its commitments to the Sub-Fund.	The fund is subject to normal market fluctuations and the risks associated with investing in securities markets. The value of your investment and the income from it may be affected by general economic and political factors as well as industry or company specific factors.	Certain securities could become hard to value, or to sell at a desired time and price.	Exchange rate fluctuations may negatively impact the value of investments designated in another currency. Adverse movements in currency exchange rates could result in a decrease in return and a loss of capital. It may not be possible to successfully hedge against the currency risk exposure in all circumstances.
